Dear Sir Christopher,

The public have lost faith and respect for MPs following the revelations about their expenses. As individuals and businesses we are subject to HMRC controls and rules when income and expenses are involved. Could I suggest that HMRC are involved in helping formulate the new rules and when the new system comes into operation they are also involved in auditing the operation for each individual MP every year. Where income and expenses occur MPs are not special people and if the public saw that they were subject to the same rules as the rest of the country I think some respect and trust would eventually return. I hope you find this suggestion helpful and thank you and your Committee for all the work you are carrying out in this area

Yours Sincerely
